Marjorie Clearwater was a well-known local watercolor artist, who also worked in other mediums including sculpture, and a member and supporter of many local arts organizations. This exhibition in the Hall Gallery includes works from throughout her life as gathered by her daughter. Marjorie passed away in 2017.

"The Zavalov and Clearwater names have meant so much to the local art community and organizations," said Georgina Goodlander, Visual Arts Director for the Idaho Falls Arts Council, "It's wonderful to have their artworks on display in the Willard Arts Center to demonstrate even a small selection of the talented and diverse community of artists we have in Idaho Falls."

The Hall and Carr Galleries are located in the Willard Arts Center at 450 A Street, Idaho Falls and are open from 9am-5pm Monday – Thursday, 9am-3pm Friday, and 10am-4pm Saturday. Both exhibitions will be open through March 10, 2019 and are free to the public.
