The Idaho Falls Arts Council is kicking off its 2026-2027 season with a free community celebration on A Street featuring live music, street vendors, season previews, and a night of nostalgic fun with 90's MixTape.

This celebration invites the community to come together, enjoy the excitement of a new season, and get a sneak peek at what's coming to the Idaho Falls Arts Council in the new season. This event is free and open to everyone.

"At the Idaho Falls Arts Council, we know that the arts add something truly special to our community and that everyone benefits when they have the opportunity to experience them. The Street Party is a perfect way to showcase this. It's free, welcoming to all ages, and brings people from across our community together in a shared celebration of the arts." Says Gray Augustus, Executive Director of the Idaho Falls Arts Council "September 19th and the Street party marks the launch of our 2026-2027 presenting season, a season focused on bringing exceptional, stage ready performances and world class talent to the Colonial Theater. The Street Party will be more than just a concert. It will be a full night of '90s fun, bringing generations together to sing along, dance, and relive the music and memories of the decade all while kicking off what we believe will be an incredible season at the Colonial Theater. We love that we get to kick the night off with our outstanding local opener, Unlabeled Mixtape and then get the privilege of bringing four Broadway singers to the stage with 90's MixTape Live."
