Our 2021-2022 season of national touring shows was mostly back to normal after two seasons of uncertainty due to the COVID-19 response. We presented eight nationally touring shows as part of our mainstage season, including Collision of Rhythm, The Choir of Man, and The Great Gatsby. Additionally, we presented three special engagements, four intimate performances in our Carr Gallery Sessions series, and five screenings of National Theatre Live productions. Luca Stricagnoli sold out his Carr Gallery Session in October and Ryan Hamilton sold out two performances at the Colonial Theater on the Friday and Saturday after Thanksgiving. Several shows included matinee performances, which were enjoyed by over 7,000 students from local school districts. We hosted nine visual art exhibitions in our two galleries, showcasing established groups such as the Snake River Plein Air Painters and the Idaho

Watercolor Society as well as emerging new artists such as Gisele Pennock: the Spirit of Gorogonza and Sydny Day: Drawn Outside. The 14th Annual National Juried Exhibition received an impressive 358 entries from across the country. In January, we installed long-awaited new track lighting in the Hall Gallery.

ARTitorium on Broadway thrived this year, with record admissions and art class participation. We hosted 5,447 students on field trips at ARTitorium, two successful free days in September and March, and partnered with Teton Toyota for the worldwide Toyota Dream Car Contest in January. The 2021 Youth Jam theme was Under the Sea and included a giant whale to paint and a collaborative fish mural alongside the 10 sea-themed art booths.
